FEAR NEW MIDEAST WAR

Canada, U. S., Britain still believe in peace

by the CJN diplomatic editor

United Nations, N.Y.—Intense diplomatic activity has followed the vile and sneaky attack of Egypt on the last Jewish Sabbath at the Suez Canal. This unprovoked battle which the Egyptians started, according to the United Nations observers' report through their headquarters here, threatens the negotiations conducted by Mediator Jarring for ending the war in the Middle East.

Fifteen Israeli soldiers died when they suddenly were befallen during a Sabbath party. Others were wounded.

On Sunday and Monday the Israelis captured a number of underground Arab terrorists in the West Bank including one of their leaders. They admitted that Jordanian authorities permitted them to operate from their territory.

Canadian, British and American diplomats are inducing the Israelis to continue their talks although in Jerusalem many members of the cabinet have joined the opposition to Abba Eban's policy because of these events.

However most experts here are gloomy about the prospects of peace. In fact, they agree with Moshe Dayan that Egypt is being pushed to war by Communist powers and that Red military personnel are directing Egyptian army operations. It is closer to war than to peace, they say.

Court demands removal of "Jewish" clause

Cape Town, (JCNS) - An application has been submitted by Mr. M.P. Hopkins to the Cape Town Supreme Court for the removal of the word "Jew" from the title deeds of "Alphen" farm, stipulating that certain parts of the property could not be sold to a Jew, Malay, Coloured, Bantu or Asian.

The farm is situated in the select Constantia Valley and the clause was included when Mr. H. A. C. Bairnsfather-Cloete sold a plot of land some years ago. He is now strongly supporting the application.

Before agreeing to the change, Mr. Bairnsfather-Cloete was interviewed by a representative from a Jewish organization, and in conversations with Jews he gave the assurance that that condition would never again be imposed on the sale of any of his land. The other conditions stand.

POLL ON INTERMARRIAGE SURPRISES LEADERS

New York (JCNS) - A poll just taken among teenagers in a Jewish community centre at Pittsburgh, Penn., can be expected to cause dismay to two of the three religious Jewish "denominations" in America.

It shows that 75 per cent of the Orthodox young people among the 326 who were polled, thought it essential to marry within their faith, while about 50 per cent of the Conservative and only 15 per cent of the Liberal said that they would. However, more than 75 per cent of all the young people thought it was all right to "date" with non-Jews.

The poll was taken at the Pittsburgh Jewish Y-Irene Kaufman Centre.

About a third of the membership replied to the questionnaire and some 12 per cent said they were Orthodox, 30 per cent Liberal and 46 per cent Conservative. The others either said they were not affiliated or that they "did not know".

Most of the young people who replied said that they attended religious services less than once a month, and reported that their parents also did not attend regularly, although 80 per cent of the parents went to "shool" on the High Holy days. Despite their regular low attendance, some 65 per cent of the teenagers thought attendance at Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur services necessary to be "a good Jew" and that 90 per cent of them did so.

About half of the replies stated that it was necessary to gain the respect of Christians and about the same number said that synagogue membership was essential to be a good Jew. Only 10 per cent thought kashrut was important, and even fewer, 9 per cent, listed philanthropy as essential.

On Israel, about 15 per cent of the young people said that support of the Jewish State was necessary to be a good Jew, but 85 per cent believed that American Jews should help to raise money for Israel, and more than 60 per cent said that Jews should try to influence the Unied States Government to help Israel. About 50 per cent said American Jews should visit Israel at least once, but only 2 per cent thought American Jews should settle in Israel.

COMMUNITY MEETING THURSDAY

The annual meeting of Toronto's organized Jewish community (United Jewish Welfare Fund) will take place this coming Thursday evening, November 7th, at the Baycrest Center for Geriatric Care. The meeting will discuss the report on the deferment of By-Law 100 and also will hear the president's report. All members of the Jewish community are invited.

NEO-NAZIS MOVE TO NORWAY

Oslo, (JCNS) - A group, mostly of students and other young people, is attempting to form a neo-Nazi party in Norway under the leadership of Olav Hoass, a high school teacher in the western town of Floro.

He has published a pamphlet saying that the group aims at a "fearless reappraisal of the character of the Norwegian community and its organizations". It would provide an alternative to "Marxist-nihilism, bureaucracy, the party machine and the isolation from the general public of the people's representatives".

The group would fight mercilessly "to clean up the Press, radio and television from Marxist infiltrators".

Outlining international policy, the pamphlet said that "nationalism must be developed in territories which are culturally and socially related to each other in race".

A Nordic national state was the first objective. Later, when the dominating influences of the United States and the Soviet Union were less strong, links would be formed with "brother-people" in Europe. Strangers must be removed and anyone not of Aryan race would be excluded.

The military call up of women was the only Israeli practice the group was ready to adopt. Norwegian Communists and "other traitors" would be shown no mercy, and there would be no aid for developing countries.

TEITZ TO SPEAK AT YESHIVA MEET

Rabbi Pinchas M. Teitz of Elizabeth, New Jersey, the leader of North America's orthodox rabbinate, will be guest speaker at the annual banquet of Toronto's Yeshiva Yesodei Hatorah.

The annual banquet has become a tradition in the Jewish community and is attended by the most prominent leaders, lay and religious.

The banquet will take place at the Beth Jacob Synagogue hall, 147 Overbrook Place, Downsview, Sunday evening, November 10th.

Commentary

by M. J. Nurenberger

THE NEW ASSAULT

Many wonder what is behind this new rage of the Egyptian enemies of Israel at the Suez Canal. Why is it that just now, of all months and weeks since the Six Day War when there are peace contacts, the outburst has been so violent? Why is it that just now in the West Bank and in the suburbs of Jerusalem certain Arabs are doing their best to undermine the state of excellent relations that has prevailed in all occupied territories since the last war?

Of course, it is clear that this "spontaneous" reaction and the sudden displeasure with some measures taken by the occupying power not only more are violent but obviously are organized from abroad.

Anyone who traveled through Israel before and after the June events will agree that the problem of the Palestinian Arabs stems from foreign interference and the determination of foreign Arab rulers and would-be rulers to use them as pawns on the political chess board.

Certainly the Arabs living under the Israeli regime have nothing to gain from these quarrels; they don't have to become terrorists in order to achieve in peace negotiations leading to a restitution of national, autonomous life. In fact, Israel's main objective in the field of Arab policy is to permit the Arabs to live their own national life while developing its own personality. Yet this objective depends upon peace--and peace only. It cannot be reached, or even contemplated, in an atmosphere of terror and war.

Thus the paradox of the situation in the Middle East is: those powerful Arab rulers who use the Palestinian Arabs as political instruments do not wish them to live in peace; the Israelis, on the other hand, are interested in a peaceful Middle East society only.

The moment a sign of accommodation appears on the horizon, the iniquities of Egypt are revived.

There is another reason for some Arab opposition to peace. This cause was best expounded in the last issue of Time Magazine where the unbelievable industrial development of Israel is being presented.

The new economic progress of the Jewish state is described by Time as "a harvest of prosperity from the seeds of bankruptcy." It seems that even in the field of producing arms Israel will be completely independent within ten years from any supplier if this tempo continues.

This miracle of Israel's industrial growth Nasser cannot tolerate.

Should peace "explode", all theories propagated from Cairo about Israel's inviability will blow up with it and the Arabs will behold, for the first time, the face of true Israel working not for the destruction of man but for his happiness, be he Jew or Arab.

Election South of the Border

AN EXCLUSIVE BY RICHARD YAFFE

WE INTERVIEW NIXON

By our JCNS Correspondent
New York

Richard Nixon, the Republican candidate for the Presidency, puts the Middle East immediately after Berlin and ahead of Vietnam in his list of American security priorities, he told the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organisations at a private meeting on Monday.

He declared that the Middle East arms balance had to be in Israel's favour in order to avoid a Russian and Arab "miscalculation and another explosion."

His short-range policy as President would be to strengthen Israel and provide her with jets and other necessary "hardware," while his long-range aim would be to seek a Middle East solution with the Russians.

Mr. Nixon warned, however, against any imposed settlement in the region, and advised against trusting any Russian "guarantees" after what had happened in Czechoslovakia.

Both Mr. Nixon and his Democratic opponent, Mr. Hubert Humphrey, were invited to appear before the Conference, which represents all major American Jewish organisations, with the exception of the American Jewish Committee, but only Mr. Nixon gave a prompt reply and agreed a date.

On learning of this, Mr. Humphrey's aides tried to get the Conference to hear the Democratic candidate before listening to Mr. Nixon, but officials explained that there was not sufficient time to notify the membership.

The real reason was that Mr. Max Fisher, one of the leaders of the United Jewish Appeal and an adviser to Mr. Nixon, made strong objections to altering the arrangements.

Meanwhile, Mr. Humphrey, who is worried about Jewish votes in New York State, which could be decisive, appeared before the New York Board of Rabbis to press his campaign, and then called on both the Satmarer Rebbe, Rabbi Joel Teitelbaum, and the Wiener Rebbe, Rabbi E. J. Lebovits, in Brooklyn, and addressed crowds in Jewish sections of the city throughout the day.

He told the Board of Rabbis that he was "deeply troubled" over antisemitic remarks made by Negroes and promised that, if elected, he would do everything possible to restore law and order in America and provide "every American with safety in his home, business and neighbourhood."

JOHNSON DEFENDED

He assured his questioners that he was for peace in Vietnam, but defended President Johnson's record. Although the polls show Mr. Humphrey as moving up slightly in popularity, he is still far behind Mr. Nixon, and Jewish votes might make the difference in some large cities.

But reports from a number of centres show that Jews, who gave Mr. John F. Kennedy between 75 and 80 per cent of their votes, are now expected to give Mr. Nixon a significant part of it.

Mr. Nixon asked our JCNS correspondent to find the answers to questions on his Middle position in a speech he made to the B'nai B'rith convention in Washington on September 8.

Nixon puts stress on Middle East

The questions and the pertinent portions of the speech in reply to them are as follows:

What is your policy on the Middle East?

Mr. Nixon: I will repeat, if elected, America's "firm and unwavering commitment to the national existence of Israel.

"America . . . must determine how we can change the collision course of the nations in the Middle East, and avert a confrontation of the major powers.

"Israel must have sufficient military power to deter attack.

"We must deal directly with the subject of the Soviets on the Middle East" and "come to diplomatic grips with the scope and seriousness of the Soviet threat.

"We have to make it crystal clear (to the Soviet Union) that the stake of the free world in the Middle East is great; we must impress upon the Russians the full extent of our determination; and then, and only then, will we cause them to re-examine their own policy to avoid a collision course.

"The United States must take the lead in forging an acceptable settlement in the Middle East."

"Access for the ships of all nations through the reopened Suez Canal and the Straits of Tiran should be guaranteed. The settlement should include the recognition of Israel sovereignty, its right to exist in peace, and an end to the state of belligerency.

"It is my view that for Israel to take formal and final possession of the occupied territories would be a grave mistake; at the same time, it is not realistic to expect Israel to surrender vital bargaining counters in the absence of a genuine peace and effective guarantees."

Do you favour the supply of the latest type combat aircraft to match the modern equipment supplied by the Soviet Union to the Arabs?

Mr. Nixon: "The danger of war increases in direct ratio to the confidence of certain Arab leaders that they could win that war.

"Since the Six-Day War, the Soviet Union has systematically rebuilt the armed forces of the U.A.R. Their goal was not to restore a balance of power; their goal was to further Soviet ambitions.

"To a disturbing extent, they have introduced new and more sophisticated weapons. Their Middle Eastern clients are growing more confident that they could win a war of revenge and drive Israel into the sea.

"Israel must possess sufficient military power to deter an attack. As long as the threat of Arab attack remains direct and imminent, sufficient power means the balance of power must be tipped in Israel's favour. An exact balance of power, which in any case is purely theoretical and not realistic, would run the risk that potential aggressors might miscalculate and would offer them too much of a temptation.

"For that reason—to provide Israel a valid self-defence—I support a policy that would give Israel a technological military margin to more than offset her hostile neighbours' military superiority.

"If maintaining that margin should require that the U.S.A. supply Israel with supersonic Phantom F-4 jets, we should supply those Phantom jets."

What active steps are you prepared to take to promote a Middle East settlement?

Mr. Nixon: "The foundations for a permanent peace will be laid when hunger and disease and human misery have begun to disappear from the Arab world.

"Some Arab leaders equate America's support of Israel as being 'against' them. That is simply not true.

"The United States should work with every nation in the Middle East willing to live in peace with its neighbours on a far-reaching development programme.

"The imaginative Eisenhower plan to bring water—and thus food and employment—to the Middle East is one such proposal. This plan would provide atomic plants for the desalting of sea water, water so desperately needed to irrigate deserts. The first of these plants would produce as much fresh water as the entire Jordan River system does today, opening a new life to hundreds of thousands of Arab refugees. We must explore every avenue to turn the arms race into a race for development."

In your view, is the United States committed to maintaining the territorial integrity of Israel if she is attacked?

Mr. Nixon: "The United States has a firm and unwavering commitment to the national existence of Israel.

"America supports Israel because we believe in the self-determination of nations; America supports Israel because we oppose aggression in every form; America supports Israel because it is threatened by Soviet imperialism; and America supports Israel because its example offers long-range hope to the Middle East.

"There is another reason that goes beyond diplomacy: Americans admire a people who can scratch a desert and produce a garden. The Israelis have shown qualities that Americans identify with: guts, patriotism, idealism and a passion for freedom.

"All these reasons add up to why we are not about to abandon Israel. America's word is good. It has cost us enough to prove that.

"We recognise Israel's predicament; its enemies can afford to fight a war and lose, and come back to fight again; Israel cannot affort to lose once. America knows that, and America is determined that Israel is here in the family of nations to stay."

AWARD FOR KLEIN

Milton Klein, Q.C., of Montreal, who, together with James Walker, Toronto M.P., sponsored the famous anti-hate bill in the last parliament, will be presented with the Parliamentarian Award by Toronto's N3 Anti-Nazi Organization, Saturday evening, November 9th, at the New Murray House.

At the same dinner, the Ambassadors of Denmark and Sweden will accept on behalf of their governments the Humanitarian Award upon the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the heroic rescue of the Danish Jews.

Among the outstanding participants on the program will be: the Hon. Donald McDonald, representing Prime Minister Trudeau; the Hon. Allan Grossman, representing Premier Robarts; Toronto's Mayor Dennison; the Consul General of Israel, Dr. Abba Gefen; Max Schecter and Nathan Silver representing the community. Cantor Bela Herskovits will provide the musical program.

Beat the Funds

That's the goal of many stock dabblers — outperforming the mutual funds. But how many actually do? If you're in the market for fun, and don't care whether you win or lose — well, fine. On the other hand, stock buying may mean to you (as it does to us) the serious business of taking a risk to put dollars to work, and no laughing matter at all. If that's the case, you may want to determine coldly, objectively whether the time and effort you've spent in doing it yourself and trying to beat the funds have paid off. Has your own performance been poor, fair or good? There's just no way to know, it seems to us, unless you compare your record with that of the professionals. We'd be glad to provide you, at no cost or obligation, the necessary information for checking the performance of your own portfolio against that of the REGENT FUND.

Harbinger of change in France's views?

By FRED GOLDSTEIN, PARIS, JCNS Correspondent

"I leave for Israel with profound emotional feelings," M. Francis Huré, France's new Ambassador to Israel, told your correspondent here, in an exclusive interview.

The 49-year-old career diplomat, something under medium height, slim and dark-haired, added: "Israel arouses my emotions, because it constitutes a great human problem and also because I am a Roman Catholic, though not a practising one . . . I cannot forget the silence of Pope Pius XII during the Second World War."

M. Huré (left) talks to Fred Goldstein

M. Huré has served in a variety of posts in many parts of the world since he passed the difficult examinations of the French Civil Service and was accepted on to the Foreign Ministry staff in 1941, at the age of 22. He was then, as he put it, "fresh from the army," and his family's sole support.

Nevertheless, he decided to escape from Nazi-occupied France and join General de Gaulle and the Free French in London. This action and two other factors have "conditioned" his personality, M. Huré told me, and "they should be borne in mind."

What were they? "First, I am a scion of a peasant family which became an average bourgeois family under Louis-Philippe, and we come from Abbeville, in northern France. We remember three invasions and three exoduses —1870 (the Franco-Prussian War), 1914 (the First World War) and 1940 (the Second World War), which last I lived through myself."

The other factor, after his wartime escape to London, said M. Huré, is that his wife, the daughter of a French First World War hero, was a Resistance leader who was caught by the Nazis and deported to Ravensbrueck.

He met her, M. Huré recalled, "in shattered Warsaw, soon after she had been freed from Ravensbrueck by the Allies."

What was he doing in Warsaw at the end of the war? He had been sent there after a spell of diplomatic duty in the Soviet Union. From Poland he was sent to Formosa, then Tokyo, and then to Paris for a time.

From 1950 to 1955 M. Huré was in New York, at the United Nations, "an extraordinary experience."

During the past eight years, M. Huré has served in London, Turkey and Cameroon, among other places.

When he returned to Paris last April, he was asked where he would like his next posting to be, and Israel was one of the three countries on his list.

At the moment he has only "standard directives" to guide him, but after a few months in Israel to see things for himself, he will be recalled to the Quai d'Orsay "for consultations," in accordance with its tradition.

Then, probably in January or February of next year, when he has had a chance to form his own judgement, he will report to General de Gaulle, to the Prime Minister, and to the Foreign Minister. His report will be one of the factors in any change that may come in French policy towards Israel, though whether there will be a change or not, no one can say.

M. Huré is very modest about the part he might play. His main duty for the time being, he said, will be "to maintain a dialogue, to talk to people. You cannot imagine how helpful this is."

The new Ambassador will also "try to settle all kinds of questions of co-operation considered secondary. It is my experience that, when you have found a satisfactory working method for these questions this is a great help in solving the bigger problems."

Whatever opinions M. Huré finally forms about Israel they will certainly be listened to in Paris. He is a cautious man, and will be taking up his post with an unbiased mind. Nevertheless, he gives the impression of a certain friendliness in his approach.

Mme Huré and their 15-year-old daughter will be going with him.

ANNUAL MEETING
UNITED JEWISH WELFARE FUND OF TORONTO

Thursday, November 7th, 1968 - 8:00 p.m.
Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care
3560 Bathurst Street, Toronto

The entire community is invited to attend.

The Annual Meeting will include the President's Report, the Treasurer's Report, a report on the deferment of By-Law 100.

ISRAELI TO ADVISE WORLD BANK PRESIDENT

Washington, (JCNS) - Mr. David Kochav, the former director of Israel's Economic Planning Authority, has been appointed director of the policy studies unit of the World Bank.

In his new duties Mr. Kochav will prepare policy papers for the board of directors and for Mr. Robert S. McNamara, the bank president.

BULLETINS

NEGRO EDUCATOR DISMISSED

New York, (JCNS) John F. Hatchett, the Negro educator who wrote that Negro teachers were being "mentally poisoned" by "anti-black Jewish teachers and black Anglo-Saxons", has finally been dismissed from his post at New York University - but not for his antisemitism.

His dismissal followed a speech before a gathering of university students in which he described Mr. Hubert H. Humphrey and Mr. Richard Nixon, the presidential candidates, and Mr. Albert Shanker, president of the United Federation of Teachers, as "racist bastards".

The dismissal by the president of the university, Dr. James M. Hester, brought immediate reprisal from extremist student groups, black and white. A student strike was proclaimed and groups of students occupied several buildings on the Bronx campus of the university.

This had been feared and was the main reason why there was reluctance on the part of the university officials to dismiss him, once their unfortunate appointment of him was made.

BEGIN CANCELS PARIS VISIT

Jerusalem, (JCNS) - Mr. Menahem Begin, the Minister without Portfolio and leader of the Herut Party, has cancelled a visit to Paris for the Israel Appeal campaign. It is believed that he decided to stay in Israel because of political developments, but a spokesman denied that the cancellation was associated with any possible Ministerial crisis.

Mr. Begin is going to Switzerland on November 10 to conduct a five-day Israel Appeal.

NEW ARCHBISHOP OF ISRAEL

Washington, (JCNS) - The Vatican approved last week the nomination of Bishop Joseph Rayya, 51, of Montgomery, Ala., as head of the Greek Catholic Church in Israel. He takes up the appointment of Archbishop of Haifa, Acre and Galilee, vacant since November last year when his predecessor was elected Maximus V Hakim, Patriarch of Antioch and all the Orient, Jerusalem, and Alexandria, with his seat in Damascus.

The new Archbishop, who was born in Zahle, Lebanon, was elected by the Church Synod at Ein Terez, near Beirut, at the end of September. He was inducted at a ceremony here last week.

Mr. Zeev Bonneh, Israel's Consul-General in Atlanta, Georgia, represented the State of Israel, as well as Mr. Itzhak Rabin, her Ambassador to the United States, at the ceremony.

The new Archbishop, who left for Europe and the Vatican today, is expected to arrive in Israel soon.

GUEST SPEAKER AT RECEPTION.-Zvi Kolitz, Israeli producer and journalist, who will address a cocktail reception prior to a tribute dinner to be held on December 7th in honor of Harry and Jack Barkin which will be tendered by Beth Sholom in cooperation with Toronto State of Israel Bonds. The reception will take place on Thursday evening, November 14th, hosted by the sons and sons-in-law of the honorees: Leonard W. Barkin; Allan M. Barkin; David Marks; Dr. Martin Barkin; Larry W. THE YOUNG WOMEN OF ISRAEL

by RUTH JORDAN

In Elath, in August of last year, I saw a bevy of young girls giggling and splashing water under the sprinklers that were meant to revive the dry lawn. They looked, and sounded, as if they did not have a care in the world. Only a month earlier they were with the army advancing through the Sinai desert, performing their duties bravely and quietly, like the men, Khaki scarves tied round their heads, "to keep our hair nice for when we get back."

They have seen death in the face, had tended the wounded, had lost friends and relatives, and had helped to win the war. Now they were being what they had never ceased to be - gay young things, who were having innocent fun in the heat of the day.

Not long afterwards a Tel Aviv colleague told me how he nearly had a blind date with a young schoolgirl. He had just borrowed a copy of Neville Shute's "In The Wer" in English, from a public library, when on page eight he noticed a message scribbled in green ink, which read as follows: "Please turn to page 21". On page 21 he was asked to turn to page 74, then to page 114, and eventually to the last page of the book.

His perseverance was rewarded. On the blank side of the last page, in very neat handwriting a girl gave her age as fourteen and a half, plus her name and telephone number, and her record at school, which appeared to be very good. She invited the reader to contact her, provided he was not older than sixteen, and had also top marks at school.

My colleague duly rang up the number, and was assured by a delighted girl that the message was indeed up-to-date, having been scribbled only a few days earlier. She talked with confidence about Child Psychology, Problems of Adolescence for Boys and Girls, and the Complex of the Fat Girl. Exams being over, she and her classmates were spending their evening dancing to the latest hit tunes, at parents' houses. She insisted on fixing a rendezvous, but accepted without suspicion, the excuse that he was going abroad in a day or two. "I shall go abroad, too, when I am sixteen," she announced.

How some sixteen-year-olds win their trip abroad I learned from Tali's mother. On the last day of term Tali came home depressed and moody. She professed boredom. The parents suggested excursions to the West Bank summer camps, good books. Tali became more and more despondent, and the family doctor recommended a few days in bed. For a few days she resisted food, kind words and threats.

Then she let the cat out of the bag. All her girl friends were being offered trips abroad. Rina had already gone to England, Dalia to Sweden, Sharon to Italy, and Michal to Mexico. She was the only one who was spending the holidays at home, and nobody would talk to her next term. Her future was at stake. The outraged parents wrestled for a while, but in the end gave way. Tali joined an organized tour to Switzerland.

By contrast, a beautiful girl of twenty-four had set up a new standard of ambition and achievement. A secretary by training, she had always cherished a boy's dream of Joining The Navy. Because there is nothing in the regulations of the Israel Merchant Navy barring women, she sat for the qualifying entry exams, and passed.

Her beauty made her look in uniform more like a cinema heroine than a genuine cadet, but her good looks only concealed unsuspected resources of self-discipline and determination. On her first trip her shipmates tried their hardest to put her off, but she said, and proved, that anything they could do she could do better. Now, after her first successful year as a naval cadet, veteran Israeli sea dogs tip her as the first Israeli she-captain to sail the seas.

If there is a moral to be drawn somewhere, it is that young Israeli women fall into as many individual types as women anywhere else. There is perhaps one fundamental difference, and it is this difference that can turn the self-centred pleasure-seeking teenager into a dedicated woman.

The tradition of striving towards national and political integrity has sown seeds of dedication in every heart. It does not take much to make them strike root and bud. As events have proved time and again, young and mature women alike can drop their comfortable routine and rise to heights of bravery and self-sacrifice. Nor do they require a national emergency to bring out the best in them.

I remember those charming girl-soldiers in the Negev, who in their off-duty hours were lovingly watering young saplings in a kibbutz they were never going to see again, as far as they knew. "We are doing it for those who might come after us," they said simply. The seed of dedication was there all right.

ALL SET FOR WINTER VACATIONERS: A typical scene on the beach of one of Israel's four seas.

TO BE HONORED.-Jack I. Hauer, who will be honored by Yorkdale Lodge, B'nai B'rith, at a tribute dinner tendered by the Lodge in co-operation with Toronto State of Israel Bonds at Adath Israel Synagogue, Saturday evening, December 7th. Milton Turk is dinner chairman; Jack Weinberger, Israel Bonds chairman for Yorkdale Lodge, heads the tribute committee comprising Keith Alexander, Steve Baron, Morris Edelstein, Sam Edelstein, Max Feig, Joe Figa, Mark Goldenberg, Saul Hauer, Melvin Ostro, Michael Rosen, Mike Rosenberg, Joe Shabes, Sam Smiley, Sheldon Stein, William Tenenbaum, Simon Traub, Norman Turk, Morris Wagner, George Weiss. Max Rosenbloom is president of Yorkdale Lodge.

DAVID GREEN, President of the Hebrew National Association, Toronto Vice-President of the College Memorial Chapel and executive member of the United Organizations for Histadrut, last week arrived in Israel on a special mission regarding the project to aid the border settlements that are suffering under El Fatah attacks, particularly Kibbutz Ashdot Yaacov.

Three Wise Men

They went on winter tours to Israel.

They came by separate routes, our 3 wise travelers to the East.

They met, judging by the picture, in Beersheba.

Details of our travelers' routes (let's call them tours) will be found in the column to the right.

They make happy detailing for anyone anxious and ready to get away from it all.

And wise enough to do it by tour.

A tour, for those who don't already know it, is the sanest way yet invented for seeing the most (and getting the most out of what you see) with the least amount of travel irritation, aggravation and discomfort.

A tour of Israel this winter is something extra special. The weather is balmy, resort-type weather.

Perfect walking weather in the old city of Jerusalem.

Perfect driving weather along the historic coastal road in the Northern Negev.

Perfect excursion weather down at the lowest point of earth, in the Dead Sea.

Or on the heights of Mt. Tabor, or at nearby Megiddo, where Solomon once held summer court.

Another important thing to remember about tours is that they are economical.

Example: our first wise man spent 9 deluxe days and nights in Israel, with top hotel accommodations (meals not included), transfers, plus sightseeing, for $499* including airfare. Could you do better in Miami?

Example: our second wise man came by the "Israel Freewheeler" Tour. This one includes roundtrip flight, accommodations at a guest house for 9 nights, Ford Escort U-drive sedan for 9 days with 250 kilometers free (extra mileage at 8c per km.) All for a fast $444.*

Our third wise man had more time. And money. He chose a three week tour to Israel, Rome, Madrid, Lisbon and London for $833.* This covers air fare, transfers, hotel accommodation and breakfasts. Also sightseeing in Tel Aviv, Jerusalem, Haifa, Rome, Madrid, Lisbon and London. Also (are you exhausted?) excursions to the Dead Sea, Bethlehem, Hebron and the Galilee.

Doing it on your own, you simply could not see it all in the same amount of time.

You would waste precious hours on transfers at airports. Arranging sightseeing trips. Wrestling with the baggage as well as the language.

And you certainly could not do it for the same amount of money.

Yet, EL AL tours offer so many variations, with so many departures, you can practically write your own where and when ticket. That's the picture. Except for a closing thought about the picture above.

The wives of our wise travelers stayed in the hotel, playing canasta while it was being shot.

Being infinitely wiser, they wouldn't be caught dead on a camel.

Six more wise ways to go:

1. 14 day Israel Pilgrimage: includes roundtrip flights, transfers, 13 nights at the new Ami Hotel in Tel Aviv, breakfasts and ½ day sightseeing. $525.*

2. 14 day De Luxe Tour: includes roundtrip flight, transfers, 7 days sightseeing, 13 nights at de luxe hotels, full Israeli breakfasts. A fat $629.*

3. 21 day A-la-Carte Economy Tour: includes roundtrip flight, transfers, accommodations at Kfar Macabia (near Tel Aviv) and 7 days of sightseeing by motorcoach. $499.*

4. 3 week Fly and Drive Tour: includes roundtrip flight, Simca 1000 U-drive car with 1000 free kilometers, accommodations for 20 nights at guest house. $560.*

5. 9 day Israel Vacation: includes roundtrip flight, de-luxe and first class hotels, breakfasts, transfers, 7 days of sightseeing. $519.*

6. 15 day Israel Tour: includes roundtrip flight, 13 nights at de luxe and first class hotels, Israeli breakfasts throughout, plus dinner in Haifa. Also sightseeing in Tel Aviv, Haifa and Jersualem. Also excursions to Upper and Lower Galilee, the Negev, the Dead Sea, Hebron and Bethlehem. $635.*

*All transatlantic air transportation in Economy Class from New York, based on winter group fares (groups of 15, 25, or 50).

The anniversary

CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Last Sunday thousands of Torontonians of Czechoslovak origin observed the fiftieth anniversary of their nation under the auspices of the Masaryk Institute. Were times different, were there a completely free and independent Czechoslovakia, we should have spoken of a celebration of Czechoslovak independence. But recent events, the tragic occupation of that great country, have turned a festive occasion into a manifestation of solidarity with a subjugated people.

It was one of the most moving meetings held in Toronto in recent years. Although the participants, among them many refugees, sat with heavy hearts thinking of what Czechoslovakia might have been today, there was no atmosphere of gloom, defeat or resignation. Quite to the contrary, one noticed the characteristic Czechoslovak mood of defiance in a most difficult situation, a defiance which so eloquently is expressed in the national slogan: Truth shall prevail.

Czechoslovaks have endured for centuries many invasions and many a foreign occupation. Yet their national personalities--the Czech and the Slovak—have survived. Unfortunately their geographical position always has made them potential victims of big powers; but in the long run it did not affect the glorious history of two of the most civilized peoples on the continent who together established one national state under Masaryk.

The Jewish people are involved profoundly in this observance of Czechoslovak national sovereignty. The Czechoslovakia of Masaryk and Benes was a country of freedom for the Jew and accorded the Jewish minority every opportunity to develop its culture and its religious institutions. For one thousand years Jews have lived in Prague; they have become part and parcel of this Golden City. Up to the time of the Nazi holocaust, Czechoslovakia was one of the most glorious communities both because of its past and because of its contribution to the cultural expression of the Jew.

The Jewish community participates in this anniversary of its good neighbors of Czechoslovak descent, wishing them and the people of Czechoslovakia a revival of full national sovereignty.

We are sure the day will come when Smetana's tunes of freedom will reverberate from the forests of Bohemia, the River Mldava, through the plains of Moravia, up to the Carpathian Mountains and down to the Danube--and the glory of what was Czechoslovakia will be once more.

FINALLY WE AGREE ON OUR COMMON ENEMY

THE LEBANESE AND ISRAEL

by J. L. Lavenir

There are Lebanese for whom the fate of the Palestinians is irrelevant, and there are Lebanese, Christians and Moslems alike, for whom the Palestinian has become the symbol of a long delayed awakening.

Among militant Arab nationalists, members of the Fatah, the PLO and also a proportion of independent intellectuals, a distinction is made between the position of "the government" -- any government in the Arab world -- and their own position. For whatever it may be worth, in the small sector of Lebanese intellectuals committed to the nationalist point of view, the feeling is strong that regimes may compromise but their subjects will not. Whether this sentiment will find expression in action is another matter. It might well be reflected in a profound resentment that treaties would not easily dissipate.

What has June 5 changed, from this point of view? Everything and nothing. The June war has not produced tangible results in terms of a peace. But it has changed everything for the Palestinian, and for the thinking man, Lebanese or Palestinian.

On a general level, the war has driven home the necessity of being informed. That there is now more information available about Israel does not mean that the public at large is informed, but for those who are interested, material is available. The libraries of the Palestine Research Institute and the Palestine Liberation Organization are filled with documentation on the history of Israel, on Jewish problems, anti-Semitism; in the form of books, periodicals, and documents. In the daily newspapers, "Israel" has been taken off the list of forbidden words, reports from Tel Aviv appear frequently, and discussions on Israel can and do take place in public and in private.

In these circles, the Palestinian has become the number one subject of conversation, and the members of the Fatah a respected if not openly approved group. The camps still filled with 1948 refugees are a permanent reminder of unsolved problems.

Whether the failure to integrate is the result of lack of opportunity, is irrelevant. The fact is that the Palestinian has not been integrated into the Arab world, he is not Lebanese and he is not Egyptian. Even if he is legally integrated, he may easily remain socially and personally distinct. To some extent this is due to an effort to reclaim a lost identity and even to create a new one in the struggle itself. In this the members of the Fatah collaborate together with other conscious Palestinians.

For the militant Palestinian who is a self-appointed and frustrated nationalist, change means "liberation", and the eventual creation of "democratic Palestine", a commonly used but rarely defined term. The question of what is to happen after "liberation" remains the weakest side of all such planning. Emphasis is placed almost exclusively on the act of "liberation" and on what this means for the Palestinian; not, what it may mean in a confrontation with Israel.

To some left-wing and liberal intellectuals and politicians, the goal is the creation of a bi-national or pluralist society in the place of a Jewish State. How this is to be achieved, remains unanswered. But for some few individuals, the historical roots of Zionism, the existence of anti-Semitism, and the integration of past history into current reality, have become issues that are no longer avoided but silently and slowly studied. For many, however, simple return to the Palestine they knew remains the main aim. They cannot understand or accept that Jews from Europe or America should be entitled to go there, when they, who were born there, cannot do so.

What Zionism ultimately means, what the territorial ambitions of Israel really are, are subjects of constant discussion. Because of the conviction that there is no one on the other side who will answer their questions seriously the most limited and pessimistic answers are often accepted as final ones.

KEEP SMILING

PAINFUL LESSON

The father put his small son on the mantlepiece and told him to jump into his arms. When he jumped, his father stepped aside and the boy fell on his head.

"That will teach you a lesson," the father said. "Don't trust anybody...not even your father."

MANNERS

Mama Cannibal: "How many times have I told you not to speak with someone in your mouth!"

OBVIOUS ANSWER

"Doctor, my husband limps because his right leg is shorter than his left. What would you do in his case?"

"Limp, of course."

CLOSE SHAVE

"These happen to be Grandma's ashes."

"Poor thing. Did she pass away?"

"No. She's just too lazy to get an ash tray."

SHORT AND SWEET

First father: "Broke my kid of biting his nails."

Second Father: "Really? How?"

first Father: "Knocked his teeth out."

GENEROUS

Hobo: "Got a cigarette?"

Passerby: "Here. Take the pack."

Hobo: "Thanks. Got a match?"

Passerby: "You can keep this lighter."

Hobo: "Thanks again. Say, have you got an oil well or something?"

Passerby: "No. Lung cancer."

the lively arts

* Tony Curtis is expecting an Oscar for his performance in The Boston Strangler. He feels his career is on the upgrade. "I've had twenty years experience, I still have my looks, and I believe the next twenty years will be my best."

* Rod Steiger is glad he left regular employment for the stage. "I figured what the hell, it might be better than the civil service, so I might as well see what this acting is all about."

He likes to tell how he became an actor by accident. "I went into the navy when I was 16. I had an unhappy home and I didn't want to hang around there, so I beat up my mother to make her sign the forms and lie about my age. I didn't know what war was then, and I was too stupid to be frightened. I was a jackass, and I thought it was just marvelous to be in the navy and to have gotten away from Newark. Now I'd be scared, and I'd also be a conscientious objector, I guess. Anyhow, I came out of the navy at 20 without any education and went into the Veterans Administration of the Civil Service. All the girls used to disappear on Thursday nights and we wondered where they went. Then we found they had this little theater group going. Well, I was young and in my prime . . .

"So I figured maybe if I went down there on Thursday night I could get lucky with the girls. Then I got all involved with it, and decided that rather than work I would go to acting school. I had four years of tuition coming to me under the G.I. Bill of Rights."

Steiger studied two years with Erwin Piscator in New York, then at the American Theater Wing and afterwards he joined the Actor's Studio.

He began with walk-on parts on TV in 1947, progressed to parts with a few lines, then semi-leads; in 1953 he had the lead part in the original television production of Marty.

For eighteen months before he made The Pawnbroker, he did not work at all. Now he wants to do a picture attacking narcotics.

Steiger is 43, married to Claire Bloom and father of a daughter.

* Mildred Freed Alberg of Montreal is a Hollywood producer, having produced Hot Millions, starring Peter Ustinov and Maggi Smith.

Mrs. Alberg left Montreal in the mid-40s because "I thought New York was the center and that's where it all was." She wrote radio scripts and produced her own shows as well as having written a series of articles for the New York Post.

* Maestro Leonard Bernstein just has completed a tour of West Germany. He disappointed those Germans who looked forward to hearing the New York Philharmonic interpret Bach, Brahms or Beethoven by playing compositions of modern American composers. He avoided works by the European classical masters. However, his reception was tremendous. Tickets for the concerts had a virtually instant sale.

This season Bernstein is retiring to concentrate on composing.

* If the Wanamaker divorce comes through, Jan Sterling stands to be the next Mrs. Sam Wanamaker.

* Lee Strasberg, director of the Actors' Studio, is an inconspicuous person; if you didn't know who he was, you would pass him by on the street without pausing for a second look. But more than five-hundred people have come from all over the United States to hear his lectures. They include Shelley Winters, Terry Moore and Jennifer Jones.

However, Strasberg provokes admiration from women. Girls approach him on the pretense of talking to him about a scene, simply to pass him a note saying: "I must see you alone, your voice is so sexy!" He doesn't care for such attention.

As for those who ask him the secret of The Method: "They want to know everything in five minutes that it has taken me forty years to learn."

About Marlon Brando, Strasberg says, "He could have been one of the finest actors in the world. He is a great disappointment to his friends who feel he has not lived up to their high hopes and expectations for him. It is the responsibility of any great artist to do his bit. It is fine for Marlon to get involved in social problems but he would carry far more weight as a good actor and still do the other on the side."

Letters to the Editor

MASARYK INSTITUTE STATES POSITION

Dear Editor:

In The Canadian Jewish News of October 4th, you published a story entitled, Czech Weekly Lies About Jews. It dealt with an excerpt from an article in Novy Domov regarding Beria, one of Stalin's infamous hangmen.

The undersigned, as spokesman for both the Masaryk Memorial Institute and the Czechoslovak newspaper, Novy Domov, is most anxious to set the record straight with respect to this matter.

We agree without hesitation that the "Zionist" reference to Beria contains inferences which are most derogatory to Jewish people and consists largely of untruths and charges which no respectable newspaper should publish.

Unfortunately, due to the Czechoslovakian refugee-emergency, the editor of Novy Domov was unable to give the kind of scrutiny to the material that was accepted for publication, as is usually the case. As a matter of fact, the particular issue of Novy Domov contained only four pages due to the lack of time the editor had for the publication because of his involvement in the refugee crisis.

When the article in The Canadian Jewish News was brought to our attention, an immediate retraction was made in the issues of Novy Domov of October 19th and 26th. However, in the event that there should be any doubt about our views in this matter, we assure you that not only do we disassociate ourselves from the article in question but we shall make certain that no further articles from this particular writer, Jelinik, ever again besmirches the pages of our democratic newspaper.

We of the Masaryk Memorial Institute and Novy Domov are most proud of our record and reputation for progressive democratic thinking; we find it most abhorrent for any suggestion of racism to be attributed to us.

It may also be of some interest to you and your readers that many of the members of Masaryk Memorial Institute are Jews, some of whom have suffered the horrors of the Nazi concentration camps.

We wish further to point out that a number of members of our organization attempted to meet with you last week in order to explain the entire matter.

E. SYPTAK,
for the Masaryk
Memorial Institute
and Novy Domov.
Toronto.

man in the news

by OSCAR BERSON

TORONTO'S RAY D. WOLFE

Whether in Jerusalem at an international conference of business giants, at a meeting of Jewish leaders in North America or in Canada when our local representatives rally to make important decisions, one notices the modest, almost self-effacing, figure of Ray D. Wolfe.

Ray, as his friends call him, has become in recent years one of the tycoons of Canadian business, its wunderkind; he also is the recognized leader of Toronto's Jewish community. Yet at all these conferences and meetings, one seldom hears him speak; nor does he even intervene in the hottest debate. He listens very attentively and resists so much as possible public exposure.

Ray is the most difficult man to interview. Whenever this reporter tried to elicit an answer which would represent his opinions, Wolfe retreated into reserve and, again, self-effacement: no comment, not interested in publicity.

Yet at a relatively young age, Raphael D. Wolfe has become a popular leader of the Jewish community of Canada and one of the leading figures of North American Jewry.

His interests in what we call Jewish affairs is inherited. He was brought up by his parents, Maurice and Tillie (nee Mahovitz; his mother is American born) Wolfe, in a traditional Jewish home where the practise of Judaism was interwoven with the most ethical Hebrew principle of sharing wealth: tzedaka.

The oldest of four sons (the others, Leonard, Jack and Harvey who are associated with him in business), Ray received his Hebrew education at the East End Beach Hebrew Institute, the neighborhood Jewish center. He was bar mitzva at the McCaul St. Synagogue (later Beth Tzedec) where his grandfather was cantor. His parents and two brothers still are members of this Conservative synagogue. He and a third brother are affiliated with Holy Blossom Temple.

He has a BA from the University of Toronto and served as flier in the RAF during World War II.

Today, when reminiscing about those formative years in his Jewish education, Ray speaks with special reverence about some famous, liberal Jewish preachers -- particularly the late Rabbi Barnett Brickner of Cleveland, Ohio -- whose sermons and lectures impressed him profoundly. These spiritual leaders were also dedicated Zionists at a period when Zionism meant building the Jewish nation. They left an indelible impression upon the young lad and made him a profound believer in Jewish survival, which he has remained to this day.

Essentially Ray D. Wolfe is a man of Jewish ethics and deep reverence for Jewish tradition in all its expressions. Whether or not he believes in a particular interpretation of Judaism, he considers all constructive influences within the Jewish community as equally deserving of an audience and of recognition. Subconsciously, perhaps, he feels, as hasidim would say, the Jewish spark in every Jew. Thus he has learned to be tolerant in a society where perhaps it is so difficult to exercise this virtue.

In this, his role in the shaping of our Jewish community, he is aided by his wife Rose (nee Senderowitz) who is most dedicated to the causes in which Ray believes. His two children, Jonathan, 16, and Elizabeth, 14, are given an intensive Jewish education. For the Wolfes practise what they preach.

* * * *

Ray D. Wolfe, who receives this week the award of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews for promoting interfaith goodwill, is most representative of the younger Jewish generation which proudly continues in the footsteps of their fathers while, at the same time, it accepts all the challenges of the new society and new era. The man so honored has no Jewish complexes though he is a dedicated Jew. And because he is fully a Jew, he is the most integrated citizen. He sees the problems outside the Jewish community.

This new generation to which he belongs rejects any parochialism or superglorification of one's own community. While proclaiming proudly identification with the past and concern for the future, it lives completely within the general society absorbing its problems and working for the welfare of all -- Jew, Christian or non-believer. It sees no discrepancy between one's loyalty to a specific tradition and fidelity to the nation to which it belongs.

This probably is the reason that this generation, without inferiority complexes, has succeeded so well in creating the atmosphere of goodwill among Canadians of every ethnic and racial origin.

Thus, by honoring Ray Wolfe, the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews actually stresses this ideal of togetherness which, in this nuclear age, is the only way to survive.

Sermon For The Week

Abraham and history

This week's sedra describes the birth of both Ishmael and Yitzchok. It is odd that Abraham when told by God that he would have another son in addition to Ishmael replied, "It would be sufficient if only Ishmael would live before you" i.e. Abraham would be satisfied with Ishmael alone if he would walk in God's ways as Abraham himself did. To this God replied that Abraham's inheritance would not be passed on to Ishmael but to another son, Yitzchok who would give Abraham true "naches" and "from Yitzchok shall your seed be descendent". Abraham would indeed drive naches from Ishmael but "true naches" would come only from Yitzchok.

Actually it is easy to understand why Abraham expected so much from Ishmael. His mother was devoted to God, to the extent that she left the palace of her royal father, Pharoh of Egypt, to be a menial servant in House of Abraham. Having such parents as Abraham and Hagar it could be expected that Ishmael would grow up in the right way. Considering this, why was God so insistent that the Jews should be descendent only from Yitzchok and not at all from Ishmael?

The difference between Ishmael and Yitzchok is signified by the difference between the natural order of the world and miracles that supersede that order. Ishmael was born in a normal fashion, but Yitzchok's birth was truly miraculous. According to the laws of biology no one would have believed that Abraham and Sarah could bear a child when they were so informed by God. Even Abraham himself found it difficult to accept. Though Yitzchok's birth was miraculous there was another event closely associated with this birth that underscores more deeply the real distinction between Ishmael and Yitzchok. Ishmael was circumcised when he was 13 years old while Yitzchok was the first Jew circumcised on the eighth day. What is the significance of this?

At 13 one acquires understanding. For this reason one becomes obligated in the Mitzvothat 13 for only then has one the capacity of realizing their importance. Therefore, Ishmael when he had the capacity of comprehension and understood the value of Judaism vis-a-vis other ways of life, chose of his own volition to connect himself with God in a covenant. On the other hand Yitzchok was circumcised at eight days. An eight-day baby cannot be asked whether he freely chooses to enter into a covenant with God to say nothing of realizing its importance. Nevertheless in such a manner, independent of his free-choice and understanding, Yitzchok was connected with God. Furthermore the connection is one that can never be destroyed as signified by the expression, BRIS OLOM - an everlasting covenant.

One can now understand why God desired that the Jews should descend from Yitzchok and not Ishmael. In order that the Jews should never cease as a people, their connection with God had to be in a manner that superseded nature. Ishmael's "Jewishness" was wholly guided by reason and understanding. Ishmael was first taught the "principles" of Judaism by Abraham and when he attained maturity at 13 he was given the choice of whether he wanted to enter into God's covenant. Such a covenant could never have been an everlasting one but would have been bounded and subject to the same limitations as are the human intellect, since it would have been human intellect that "made" the covenant. At such a time when God wanted to make not just a finite contract with a single individual but an eternal bond with all future generations, he informed Abraham that only "through Yitzchok shall your seed be descendent". For just as Yitzchok's birth wad beyond the limits of nature and his entering God's covenant was not dependent upon human intellect, so the history of the Jewish people as a whole contradicts all the laws of nature and surpasses human understanding. That is, the existence of the Jewish people is not dependent upon nature but directly upon God. God says to Abraham: True Judaism can arise only from children whose birth and entire life thereafter is permeated by Godliness, rooted in God first, and bound by a covenant from the time one is only eight days old. In such a fashion a people were created whose connection with God is higher than human understanding and the natural course of events.

Since the Torah is not merely a "history book" but is meant to be a guide for all Jews in every generation there must be something relevant for each of us in the story of the covenant of God with Abraham and Yitzchok.

The lesson is this: There are some today who think that the full force of Judaism should not be impressed upon young children. Rather one should wait until the intellect of the child is matured and then present to him the true teachings of Judaism and let him decide for himself, on the basis of his own understanding, whether he wishes to follow the religion of his forefathers. The sedra of this week teaches that no matter how much intellectual effort one may expend, it is not in this manner that one is connected with God. Rather it is through an unhesitating commitment that envolves sacrifice.

Also one should not think that one can give a child a "watered-down" version of Judaism, intending to give him the truth after his mind has developed. This would be the proper thing if one were dealing with a field of intellectual study grounded in comprehension by the mind. However, Israel's connection with God goes beyond human understanding and this is indicated by our sedra which describes how a Jewish child of only eight days was connected with God by a covenant that was to last no one, ten or twenty years but forever.

What does it mean, in a practical sense, to give children Judaism in its pure, unwattered form? One must impress upon the youth the fact that the relation of God to the Jewish people as a whole and to each Jew in particular is independent of natural forces and human calculations. The history of the Jewish people testifies that they are the oldest nation in existence and have undergone tests and trials the like of which no other nation has ever endured, and that the history of the Jewish people consists of one miracle after another. In speaking of the continuance of Judaism as a whole or the faithfulness of any single Jew in particular, it must be realized that ordinary estimates of ability and probability go by the boards, for nothing can stand before the will of a Jew in his determination to live as a Jew. As far as his Judaism is concerned every Jew stands higher than the world.

When Jewish youth are reared in this fashion, then God proclaims "through Yitzchok shall your seed be descendent" -- that true NACHES will come from such Jewish children, and they alone will assure the eternal bond between Israel and God.

TORONTO AFTER DARK

BASED ON NOVEL

The King and I, the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical being performed at O'Keefe Center, is based on Margaret Landon's popular novel, Anna and the King of Siam. It tells the story of an English governess, Anna Leonowens, and her experiences in the court of Siam in the 1860's, and of her subtle influence over an inflexible monarch in bringing some needed reforms to his semi-barbaric kingdom. The original production on Broadway starred the late Gertrude Lawrence and Yul Brynner and ran just short of three years.

BREAKS BOX OFFICE RECORDS

Anne of Green Gables, nearing its five-week-run at the Royal Alex, seems to be breaking further box office records. Most matinee performances to the end of the run on November 9th are sold out and it has become increasingly difficult to obtain tickets for some of the evening performances.

Sunshine Town, another Mavor Moore musical comedy, follows on Monday, November 11th, through the 23rd.

EXHIBITION AND SALE

"Art Scene '69" is a major presentation of lighographs, oil paintings, watercolors and sculpture on exhibition and sale at the Associated Hebrew Schools of Toronto, sponsored by the Parents Association, from the gala preview on Sunday, November 10th, through the 17th. Prominent Canadian, American and Israeli artists will be represented, including Sol Field, Chatfield, Hanni Rothschild, Karl May, Marini, Chagall, Picasso, Rosenthal, Miro Ralph Nudds, May Marx, Bartram, Libbly Altwerger, Aba Bayefsky, Myron Cooper, Dora de Pedery Hunt, Joseph Leventhal, Gordon Melamed, Andrew Posa, Y. Podeswa, Robert Title, Jean Townsend and many others. American artists include Chaim Gross, Richard Florsheim, Jack Levine, Joseph Margulies, Harold Altman, Carol Summers, Alexander Dobkin.

Some of the artists will appear at the gala preview.

OBSCURE CLASSICAL DRAMA

Lovers of obscure classical drama have the opportunity of seeing, The Changeling, and, The Fan, being performed in repertory at Hart House Theater. Both productions are directed by Leon Major, director of Productions for the Center for the Study of Drama. A cast of ten professional actors and actresses includes Frances Hyland and William Needles. Four students from the Graduate Center for the Study of Drama appear in minor roles in each play.

James Hozack commences his 33rd season as manager of Hart House Theater.

STAIRCASE LONE PRODUCTION

The Staircase is Trio Productions Limited only play running at the Colonnade Theater. The bittersweet comedy on the love of two aging homosexual barbers stars Jack Creley and Sandy Webster.

NEW BILL

Popular singer Mel Torme begins a two-week engagement at the Hook and Ladder Club of the Beverly Hills Motor Hotel this coming Monday.

LAST RUN

This weekend terminates the delightful Japanese film, Skinny and Fatty, Susan Rubes' presentation at The Colonnade Theater.

Red Riding Hood, by Dodi Robb and Pat Patterson who also wrote last season's smash hit, The Dandy Lion, begins its weekend run for kiddies (and adults too) next Saturday afternoon, November 9th.

ON TOUR

Studio Children's Theater is on tour in northern Ontario with Pinocchio. Centers being visited are Sudbury, Espanola, Elliott Lake, Sault Ste. Marie, Timmins, Kirkland Lake, and other areas. Cast includes Bryan Eaton, Don LeGros, Patsy Rahn, Al Rosenthal, Amber Wendelborg.

The Northern Star is an extension of The Studio Lab Theater Foundation's aim to provide theater for children in areas where it is not readily available.

YIDDISH HUMOR AND MUSIC

Henry Goldgran presents Shimon Dzigan, Israel's foremost master of humor and satire, in a review of Israeli humor and song, in Yiddish, at Massey Hall, Friday evening, November 8th. The musical, Hut A Yid A Landele, features Mina Bern, Lili Lilliana, Schmulik Goldstein and David Rogow; Renee Solomon at the piano.

CHILDREN'S CONCERT

The new assistant conductor of the Toronto Symphony, Kazuyoshi Aikyama, makes his debut in Massey Hall tomorrow afternoon when he conducts the first children's concert of the season.

Program will feature music of Russia and Germany -- von Suppe's Light Cavalry Overture, Schubert's Unfinished Symphony (1st movement), 2 excerpts from Tchaikowsky's Swan Lake, music from Khachaturian's Gayne Ballet Suite, Blue Danube by Strauss.

Lloyd Bradshaw will narrate.

SEASON'S FIRST

TWP Theater opens the season next Tuesday with Gunter Grass' Flood, for a month through December 8th. Grass has been hailed as the strongest and most inventive writer to have emerged out of Germany since 1945.

Flood is a force depicting mankind's survival by yet another catastrophe.

15th ANNUAL ANTIQUE SHOW

The Wimodausis Club of Toronto is presentng its fifteenth annual Toronto Antique Show at O'Keefe Center, Tuesday, November 12th, through Friday, the 15th. As in the past, a treasure mart, sponsored by the Junior Wimodausis Club, will be held in the Rehearsal Hall, consisting of 12 shops with interesting crafts and flowers to sell. The dining room will hold a showing and sale of Canadian art and sculpture.

Proceeds in support of the Earlscourt Children's Home.

NOTED GUEST CONDUCTOR WILL PERFORM.-Karel Ancerl, foremost Czechoslovakian conductor now making his home in Toronto, who will conduct the Toronto Symphony Orchestra in concert at Massey Hall, Sunday afternoon, November 10th.

CONGREGATION CITED.-Max Nemoy, Q.C. (left, standing), receives the State of Israel Award on behalf of Toronto's Beth Tzedec Congregation for outstanding achievement, from Max Shecter, chairman of the Board of Governors, State of Israel Bonds of Canada; seated, Mrs. Stuart Rosenberg and Rabbi Stuart Rosenberg of Beth Tzedec in whose honor the Tree of Life Award Dinner was tendered recently by the Congregation in cooperation with State of Israel Bonds.

Guest speaker was author Maurice Samuel.

The Tree of Life Award was presented to Rabbi Rosenberg by Alex Rubin, campaign co-chairman of State of Israel Bonds Campaign, 1968, who paid tribute to Rabbi Rosenberg for the inspiration he has provided his congregation and the community at large in providing maximum support for Israel's program of economic development.

COMMUNITY PARTICIPATION IN ISRAEL BONDS CAMPAIGN -- Participation in all areas of the community in Toronto's Israel Bonds campaign has reached a top level. Activities run high resulting in an everincreasing flow of vital loan dollars for Israel at this time of need. Each event brings Toronto Jewry closer to attainment of its goal of $4 million in Israel Bonds for the 1968 drive.

Seen above are groups of dedicated individuals involved in the community effort for Israel Bonds.

In center photo are a group which attended an advance reception recently at the home of Nathan Arback in whose honor a tribute dinner will be given on November 16th by Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda Congregation: (left to right): Sidney Weinstock; George Flesch, guest speaker and former member of Israel's Knesset; Mike Feldman, Congregation president; Nathan Arback; Mrs. Arback; Hy Lampert, chairman of Organizations, State of Israel Bonds of Toronto; Morris Gruda; Alex Jelinek.

At an advance reception at the home of Harry Farber in whose honor a tribute dinner will be tendered by Upper Canada Lodge B'nai B'rith and Toronto Israel Bonds on Saturday, November 2nd, (left to right, bottom): George Goldlist; Morris Waxman; overall Israel Bonds chairman for Toronto B.B.; Harry Frank, chairman, executive committee, State of Israel Bonds of Toronto; Harry Farber; Morris Luftspring; Amnon Raphael of Israel, guest speaker; Sam Handler, Lodge president; Morris Ziman; Gil Goodman.

Entertainment in Toronto

GUEST SPEAKER.-Theodore McKeldin, former Governor of Maryland and advocate of greater American participation in support of Israel's economic growth and development, who will be the guest speaker at the gala tribute dinner honoring Nathan Arback, November 16th, tendered by Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda Congregation in conjunction with Toronto's State of Israel Bonds.

WILL SPEAK AT TRIBUTE LUNCHEON.-Countess Rinaldini-Cardelli, a Roman Catholic noblewoman who is concerned with Jewish problems, who will be the guest speaker at a tribute luncheon honoring Mrs. Irving Posluns, tendered by Toronto Hadassah, Thursday, November 7th, at Holy Blossom Temple. The Countess plans to resettle in Israel shortly.

STARS OF YIDDISH MUSICAL HIT.-(left to right) Mina Bern, Shmulik Goldstein, Lili Liliana and Shimen Dzigan in a scene from, Hut a Yid A Landele, the new Israeli musical satire which will be presented at Toronto's Massey Hall next Friday night, November 8th. Dzigan, Israel's foremost humorist, stars in the musical which is being performed in Yiddish. The new musical revue, presented by Henri Goldgran, is written by Dzigan and Moses Nudelman for its American premiere.

WILL ADDRESS DINNER.-Rabbi Berel Wein, spiritual leader of Congregation Beth Israel in Miami Beach, who will be guest speaker at the annual dinner of Toronto's Beth Jacob High School for Girls, Sunday, December 8th. A native Chicagoan, Rabbi Wein is a founder of the Chicago branch of the Telshe Yeshiva; he is active in the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America.

TORONTO SYNAGOGUES AND ORGANIZATIONS

ORATORY SABBATH

* Recently Beth El Congregation attended an oratory Sabbath service officiated by Rabbi Bernard Silverblatt, spiritual leader of Beth El. Four finalists of essays submitted previously -- The Jew and Civil Rights; Israel and World Peace ---, two from each category, presented their essays at the service: Daryl Heifetz; Mark Adler; Susan Smith; Stephen Gollish. They were judged by the adult education committee: Mrs. Faith Ospalak; Dr. Murray Tyber; Michael Jacobson. Prizes awarded the two winners, Daryl Heifetz and Susan Smith, were books of Judaic content.

* On the last Sunday of each month, the youth groups meet for various projects. Last Sunday a theater party was held.

HUMAN RELATIONS

IN-LAWS AND THE WEDDING

by Dr. Rose Franzblau

QUESTION: My son just became engaged to a lovely girl. We were invited to dinner by her parents to meet them and to celebrate.

After dinner, the hosts brought in papers with notations and figures. They informed us that they found a very beautiful synagogue for the wedding, next June, and would like us to go and look at it as soon as possible. Since choice dates are quickly taken, a decision would have to be made soon.

They told us that they would like our help. They will pay for the dinner but, as is customary, we would take care of the liquor, music, flowers and photography. The girl's mother explained that although they were a large, close-knit family, she will keep her guest list to a minimum. They also said that if we didn't want to go along with their plan, there would be no hard feelings.

We said we'd think about it.

We feel, however, that for them to plan such a lavish affair while indicating the financial burden it will be, is poor judgment, for themselves and for all concerned.

We will be entertaining them soon and would appreciate your advice.

ANSWER: Certain protocols are usually observed as to responsibilities that each set of parents takes on for the wedding arrangements and costs. This serves a good psychological purpose.

If the parents of the bride were to pay for everything, then the parents of the groom would feel left out. By making no contribution they might have nothing to say about the wedding arrangements. This way, they can participate in the planning, expressing their own wishes and also raising any objection they may have.

The hesitations of doubts that the parents may have about their own child's choice of their readiness for marriage often emerge at the time when the wedding arrangements are being made.

Sometimes these normal problems are aggravated by the demands of one set of parents, which may be extreme and unreasonable. Thus the in-law problem starts long before the marriage.

The presentation of all the plans and demands made this family get-together into a kind of business meeting, with the two sets of partners trying to work out a deal. Naturally, coming as such a complete surprise, it had something of the nature of an attack.

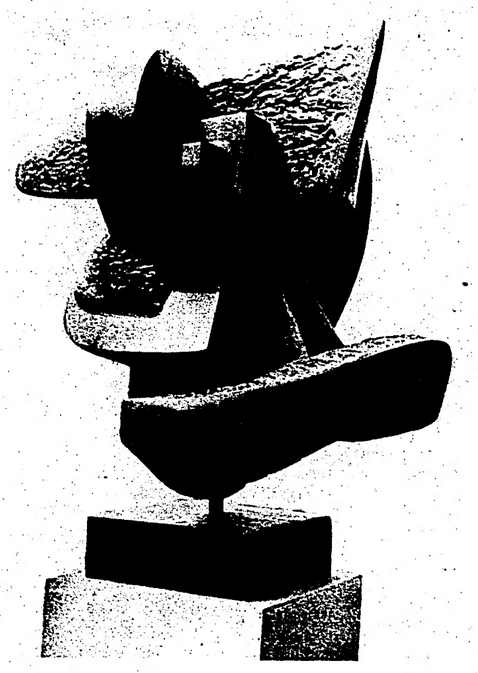
The other parents may have felt that in making all of these inquiries ahead of time, they were showing consideration of you, by doing the homework in advance.

Although it may have appeared that they presented you with a "fait accompli," they did leave the door open for any changes that you felt were in order. In all probability, they discussed their plans with your son and his fiancee and presented them to you only after they had given their approval. Part of your anger may be with your son for not having ascertained your wishes in advance.

If your objections are only to the timing, rather than to the plans they proposed, then perhaps you should go along with them. Being told the protocol may have taken away your opportunity to make the offer to contribute generously on your own. However, if you feel what was suggested is too much, and you really cannot afford it, then you should say so, without being defensive about it.

Any disagreements that could create a breach between the in-laws would add unnecessary tensions to the adjustments of marriage. The most important consideration for all of you should, of course, be the young couple, and giving them a happy start in their new life.

TO PARTICIPATE IN AWARD DINNER.-His Excellency Moshe Leshem, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of Israel to the United Nations, who will address the Award Dinner honoring Philip Smith and Stan P. Smith on Tuesday evening, November 12th, tendered by Holy Blossom Temple in cooperation with Toronto State of Israel Bonds. A leader in the anti-Nazi resistance in Czechoslovakia during World War II, he was awarded the Czech Order for meritorious services.



A MAJOR ACQUISITION.—Hasidic Head, a work of art by well known Canadian sculptor, Sorel Etrog, which Toronto's Holy Blossom Fine Arts Committee has acquired.

Roumanian born Etrog is represented in public and private collections in North America and Europe as well as in Canada.

SO I'M LAUGHING

by Ruthie

I don't remember where it was but someplace I read that if you laugh you can't stay mad. And it's good for your health too. Have I got a lot to laugh about!

* * * *

We had a wedding the other night. So what's maddening about that? Nu, how would you feel if you got into your evening clothes and had to go someplace without an escort? Because dofka (just) that night my Breadwinner had to work late. And I pleaded with him weeks before to take the evening off. After all, it's his own business and he could. But his excuse was he had to prepare for some clients the next day, I shouldn't worry, he'd be there.

So what can you do when so many people marry and there aren't enough Saturday nights and Sundays in the week?

But I was stubborn. After all, it's a woman's privilege. Nu, 's hutt gehulfen (it helped) like for a toitn bonkess (dead person healing cups).

First, I had to get a cab by myself. That, right away, took the punch out of things -- no male to help me in or out.

Then I had to check my fur piece myself. I couldn't even have the pleasure of slinging it over my shoulder casually so I could look like I'm used to such things, for the benefit of whoever was watching. And what female doesn't notice what another one wears?

This was followed by making up excuses why I came alone.

And all through the ceremony I wanted to cry because I couldn't nudge Ned and ask him, wasn't he feeling sentimental too? And he'd give his usual answer, "Poor guy, he doesn't know what he's letting himself in for."

I was beginning to boil inside. You know, having to go through a receiving line by yourself, sitting down to dinner alongside an empty seat, not dancing -- and always looking towards the door.

Finally. At ten-thirty he showed up. And just then I began to laugh, effsher lokh ikh nukh oltz (maybe I'm laughing yet).

"So what's with you?" he asked. "I'm here, no?"

Well, go complain when I'm laughing. Anyway it didn't matter anymore.

Did I make a production when I gave him my coat stub! I made sure not to say good night till I was feathered.

By the time we were home I didn't feel mad anymore.

Heather came home from school the other day with, "That nutty teacher. Boy! I studied so much and he wouldn't give us enough time to finish the test."

So I knew what was coming. "So you flunked, huh?"

"I didn't say that. I knew all the answers. Only I had no time to finish. Nobody did -- except the five or six brains in the class."

"So you couldn't be one of the five or six brains?" I felt my pressure mountng.

Suddenly I started to laugh. What else can you do? Can you make them over? As long as they have their health -- which you don't tell them, of course. Anyway, they do try.

* * * *

So all day, and all night even, I go around laughing like a hyena, I get mad so easily.

The kids think I'm batty. But at least there are no sharp words cutting the air. And Ned asks,

"Vus lokhst du vie a bahayma (why do you laugh like an animal)?"

So I keep them guessing. And you know what? Laughing does make you feel better besides dissipating any nonsensical gripe.

Recipe of the Week

Chocolate upside-down cake

1/2 cup chopped pecans
1 six-ounce package semi-sweet chocolate bits (1 cup)
1 cup confectioners' sugar
1/3 cup evaporated milk
1 cup plus two tablespoons flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup vegetable shortening
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
1/2 cup milk

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Line an 8-inch square pan with wax paper and sprinkle with nuts. Melt chocolate bits over hot water and while beating, add confectioners' sugar and evaporated milk. Spoon evenly over nuts.

Sift together, flour, baking powder and salt; reserve.

Beat together sugar, vegetable shortening and vanilla until light and fluffy. Beat in egg. Then blend in flour mixture alternately with milk. Pour over chocolate mixture in pan.

Bake 45 to 50 minutes. Let stand in pan five minutes before inverting on a rack and removing wax paper. Cool and cut into two-inch squares.

Yield: 16 servings.

PRESIDENT OF ZOC.- Daniel Monson of St. Catharines, newly elected president of the Zionist Organization of Canada, Central Division, addressing the audience at its recent 28th regional convention.

ZIONIST CONVENTION

His Excellency Abba Eban, Foreign Minister of the State of Israel, paid an unusual tribute to the Zionist Organization of Canada, Central Division, by attending its 28th regional convention held recently in Toronto.

The Aliya session, chaired by Louis L. Lockshin, president of the Jewish National Fund of Canada, discussed Kiryat Canada, a small town to be established in Israel. Max Goody, immediate past president of the ZOC, central region, reported upon his recent visit to Israel.

The Oneg Shabbat session was chaired by Dr. Mark Zimmerman with the participation of Milton Winston, national chairman, Young Judea, and Shragai Milstein

The opening session of the convention, chaired by Daniel Monson of St. Catharines, general convention chairman who was elected president of the Region, was greeted by Dr. Aba Gefen, Consul General of the State of Israel to Toronto, on behalf of Israel, the Hon. Allan Grossman, MPP, on behalf of the Province of Ontario, and Alderman David Rotenberg, on behalf of the City of Toronto. Max Goody delivered the presidential report followed by Dr. Sidney Marks of New York who spoke on: Toward a Dynamic Zionism.

Other sessions were: United Israel Appeal fundraising session, chaired by Milton Harris of London (Ont.), and addressed by Saul Hayes, Q.C., national executive vice president, Canadian Jewish Congress; membership session, chaired by Max Stein of Hamilton and addressed by Miss Yocheved Sussman, general secretary, World Zionist Congress, and Julius Hayman, national president, ZOC; projects and ZOC charitable fund session, chaired by Mrs. Louis James and addressed by Dr. George Liban, national executive director, FZOC-ZOC; activities and committee reports session, chaired by Mel Sorffer of Windsor, which among others, heard a report on credentials and delegate registration by H. Wayne Tanenbaum; Constitution, by Robert Hall; Resolutions, by Messrs. Mannie Brown and Milton Harris; nomination, chaired by Dr. Allen A. Small.

The closing dinner, celebrating Israel's 20th anniversary, at which John R. Devor toasted the Queen and the State of Israel, was chaired by Max Goody; guest speaker was Dr. W. Gunther Plaut

Those elected to serve with Daniel Monson were: Manny Rotman, vice president; Eric Exton, treasurer; Mrs. M. Smolack, honorary secretary. Vice presidents in charge of departments: Milton Harris, U.J.A.; Mark Burke, budget and finance; Irving Matlow, education and program; Jack Young, Israel trade and commerce; Dr. Harvey Narrel, youth and Young Judea.

Newly appointed district chairmen: Manny Rotman, Toronto district; Milton Harris, London district; Mel Sorffer, Windsor district; Sheldon Cohen, Kingston; Sam Spiegel, Sudbury; Saul Podnick, Owen Sound.

FEATURED AT EXHIBIT.-Sculpture by: Hanni Rothschild, Canadian artist, which is among other works of art—lithographs, oil paintings, watercolors, sculpture—on exhibition and sale during the week of November 10th through 17th at 3630 Bathurst Street, sponsored by the Parents Association, Toronto Hebrew Day Schools.
